Quotes and notes from Washington parties gathered for The Washington Star by Ymelda Dixon:

Senators nearly always delay dinner parties with the same vague excuse. "I was held up on the Hill." So when Seas. James Abourezk and Ed Brooke arrived on time for an informal dimer given by Jordanian Ambassador and Mrs. Abdullah Salak this week, they received a round of applause.

Republican Brooke ended the ribbing of Democrate Abourezk about Jimmy Carter's Playboy interview

Republican Brooke ended the ribbing of Democrat Abourezk about Jimmy Carter's Playboy interview by asking CIA chief George Bush for the CIA's assessment of the presidential election. The chief spook's reply was a grin Iranian Ambassador Ardeshir Zahedi broke the political ice by toasting a youthful-looking, Mrs. Tugan, a guest of honor with her husband Baha'eddin Tugan.
